Dear Mr. Krantz:

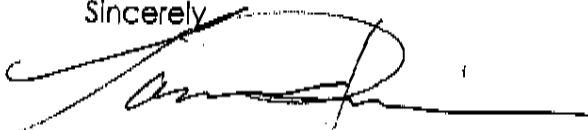

It was pleasure to participate in the workshop on differentiating instruction and multiple intelligences. The practical application of your workshop and inspiring message was an excellent way to begin the school year. Your delivery of the information could not have been more aligned with the administrative team if you have been a part of the team all summer.

On the Thursday after the workshop the participating elementary teachers working in teams brainstormed ways in which they could implement the multiple-intelligence and differentiating instruction strategies into their teaching this fall. The teachers have agreed to invite me in to view the new instructional strategies as they are implemented. I am excited to see their creativity at work.

More than the strategies, I valued your message of developing connections with students and building trusting environment which are so important for today's children. Also, having high expectation in low social-economic areas where students have historical had slower academic progress. I believe you were the shot in the arm we need to begin the year.

Thank you again for being the voice of reason in a crazy world.

Sincerely,

Tammy Demien,

Re: Professional Development

Dear Mr. Kranze;

I wanted to thank you again for presenting to our staff during our fall professional development days. The instruction and direction you delivered was very beneficial and useful with our professional goals for the upcoming year. The information on multiple intelligences and differentiated instructional strategies was both informational and beneficial to our staff and eventually our students. Academic achievement is one of our universal goals and meeting the needs of our students in a way that will take them further faster is a district priority.

We live in an area with a lot of diversity and we use differentiated instruction to meet our student needs. Your presentation will help us understand better how to better serve our students in a way that is solid in educational value and tried results. Your presentation was useful and thought by staff to be beneficial.

Thanks again for the outstanding work at our school and we would be more than happy to recommend your work for others to benefit from. Thanks again.

Sincerely;

Jason Sargent
